My wife and I recently bought a raised ground floor converted flat in Hove with the main bedroom at the front.

The first night we were horrified at how loud the traffic + pedestrians seemed to be through the original sash windows.

Double glazing seemed the only option and the quotes were ridiculous. Fortunately a friend recommended the Sash Window Man and suggested looking at having the windows reconditioned. After a consultation we decided to try acoustic glass in our original frames to comply with the conservation area.

The result, like we've moved into the country! Absolutely fantastic option, and just a small percent of the cost of new windows with other national (rip-off) firms. Thankyou so much for the advice + the service. Fantastic all round.
